1. THE MISSION OF THE PROGRAM

The Graduate School in the Humanities has as its main mission the training of specialists in long-term research in the field within a comprehensive cultural context. The PhD students are encouraged to become creative, autonomous researchers with critical thinking skills. The students are given ample opportunities to exercise and improve both professional and transversal competences, aimed at planning and assessing their work, as well as improving attitudes, values and procedures. The research is finalised by the defense of the PhD thesis. The Graduate School in the Humanities promotes the development of excellence in fundamental and applied research meant to improve the standards of higher education by the promotion of interdisciplinary research partnerships and activity at both national and international levels, given the pronounced interdisciplinary nature of research in both fields of the graduate school, and the transversal competences.

A. Professional competences:

- a) advanced knowledge in the field of the Ph.D. program;
- b) capacity of identification, verbalization and resolution of the research topics;
- c) knowledge in methods and techniques used in advanced research;
- d) knowledge in the management of the research projects;
- e) knowledge of the new procedures and solutions in research;
- f) skills of documentation, elaboration and valorization of scientific works;
- g) linguistic skills at academic level in languages of international circulation necessary for the documentation and elaboration of scientific papers;
- h) understanding and ability to apply the principles and values of scientific research ethics in the fields of doctoral studies.

B. Transversal competences:

- a) capacity to use new technologies in the fields of information and communication;
- b) interrelationship and teamwork skills;
- c) assuming responsibility and the ability to organize and direct the activity of professional groups, scientific research or institutions in the field of specialty;
- d) knowledge of mandatory rules in the field of copyright and intellectual property.
